Learning Earnings, a website that matches donors with schools. This can be used by teachers for their specific classroom, or by an entire campus. The students are given e-buck (printed or on the net) and the students use the bucks to purchase items from the site. These can be small items, or they can save up for larger items. The bucks can be given for behavior, work completion, whatever you want to target. This is great for both GenEd and SpEd!!!

www.rippleeffects.com (behavior website) (good RTI strategies)

www.classdojo.com click on the video “how to” to see some of its uses, it is a free site that lets you assign an avatar to each of your students (again classroom wide or just a few you need to take data on) and you can use the computer, ipad, or smart phone to add points to a student or take points away. The avatars can be projected in the classroom, and points added in real time, or you can just keep data on a few students unobtrusively. You can put in the specific behaviors that you want to increase and the ones you want to decrease. Again great for GenEd and SpEd.

www.netsmartz.org great website for info about bullying or other relevant topics, good for GenEd and SpEd
